

Inclement Weather Plan

Our School Community Council reviewed and approved an inclement weather plan on May 5, 2022. Guidelines were established for “inside days” when temperatures (including wind chill) are too cold or air quality is so poor that children should not be outside for extended periods of time.

An “inside day” is recommended when the temperature outside falls below 20 degrees Fahrenheit (including wind chill). It is understood that individual students may need temporary or long term accommodations for health conditions exacerbated by temperature extremes – high or low. Accommodations will be made upon parent request.

For Air Quality, as per Utah Dept. of Health guidelines, all students will be kept inside when PM 2.5 levels exceed 90 (air quality). Students who suffer from asthma or other respiratory problems, including a cold or bronchitis will be accommodated inside upon parent request.

Lightning in proximity to the campus, extreme winds, and /or significant wet precipitation are considered grounds for keeping students inside for all or part of a school day.

If we do have an “inside day” the school building will NOT be open until 8:35 as there will be no supervision. Students are invited to come into the building as they arrive. The cafeteria will not be open until 8:35 when breakfast will start to be served. Students will be in the cafeteria if they are eating breakfast or sit outside their classroom in the hall until their teacher allows them into the classroom. On poor air quality days, students remain inside the school for the entire day. The decision to keep students inside for cold temperatures can change depending on typical warming from the morning to the afternoon or the arrival of cold weather fronts. We ask that you send your child to school dressed for the predicted weather. We want our students to consistently enjoy the benefits of outdoor activity and fresh air without experiencing serious physical discomfort. Resources may be available to help out fit students lacking winter clothing. Please contact the main office if this is a concern.
